Sylvotherapy anyone?

Welcome October... Where did September go?!

Autumn has arrived and this year's colours are intensifying with each advancing day. It has been an extremely busy month with company and last minute tours which have contributed to this newsletter coming out much later than planned. We said good bye to my sister and her husband at the airport yesterday and I am back on track preparing for the upcoming photography retreat with Sylvie Mazerolle at Gillespie House Inn this coming weekend.

I am also preparing for the Outdoor Council of Canada field leader workshop to take place right here in Parrsboro. This is such a great opportunity. I get to share my experiences and sleep in my own bed at night. Fall is such a great time to show off our great area! Can't wait to certify more outdoor leaders. Cheers, Anna

OCC Field Leader Certification!

Nov. 2nd & 3rd, 2024 I will be facilitating a field leader certification workshop in Parrsboro. To find out more visit: <https://www.hikenovascotia.ca/courses-field-leader-hiking/>

Tide Rollers & Mudlarkers Hosts Family From Germany

This may not be special for some but in our case this marked 20 years that my sister visited Canada. Last time we still lived in Calgary and so much has changed since them. Here are images that sum up how much fun we had:

Fall is all around:

Thanks to the family visit I was able to get in a few woodland hikes and it reminded me of how much I love this time of year!

ANOTHER TOURISM OPPORTUNITY:

A new campaign, "Focus on Parrsboro", kicked off last weekend with influencers Davey&Sky. Early Sunday morning I had the great pleasure to lead a tour Clarke Head with this dynamic couple and their models. My friends Deena and Isidora and brother-in-law Ralf joined the outing and we had a fantastic time taking in the beach and impressive cliffs bathed in early morning light.

My gratitude goes to the supportive team from Tourism Nova Scotia. I am always amazed about the unwavering support I have received to build my tour business since registering in early 2023.
